DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 3-5 are rejected under 35 U. S. C. § 102 (e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,815,816 to Clark, Jr. et al.

Regarding to claim 1, Clark discloses a semiconductor connection comprising at least two active areas 11, 12; an electrically conductive doped channel 14 providing an electrical connection between said at least two active areas 11, 12; a first conductive layer disposed over a first portion of said electrically conductive channel (fig. 1); and a second conductive layer disposed over a second portion of said electrically conductive channel wherein said first and second conductive layers are spaced apart from one another and a third portion of the electrically conductive doped channel between said first conductive layer and said second conductive layer is uncovered (col. 3, lines 1-63, and fig 1).

Regarding to claim 3, the semiconductor connection wherein said electrically conductive doped channel comprises a first doped channel area adjacent to a first one of said at least two active areas; a second doped channel area adjacent to a second one of said at least two active areas; and a channel block structure disposed in between said first doped channel area and said second doped channel area (cols. 3-6, fig. 1).

Regarding to claim 4, the semiconductor connection wherein said first doped channel area, said second doped channel area, and said channel block structure have a same conductivity type (figs. 1, 2).

Regarding to claim 5, the semiconductor connection wherein said at least two active areas have a first doping concentration and said channel block structure has a second doping concentration, said second doping concentration being less than said first doping concentration (figs. 1, 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103 (a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,815,816 to Clark, Jr. et al. in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,326,675 to Scott et al.

Regarding to claim 2, Clark discloses the claimed invention except for the semiconductor connection wherein said first and second conductive layers are silicide layers.

Scott teaches the semiconductor connection wherein said first and second conductive layers are silicide layers (col. 4, lines 22-26).

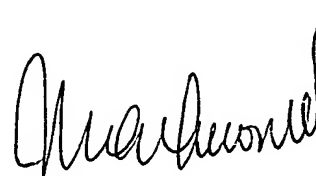

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form the semiconductor connection wherein said first and second conductive layers are silicide layers, as taught by Scott in order to inhibit reverse engineering (col. 1, lines 10-11).
